Course name		English Language 1
Teacher (lectures)		Ivana Knežević, PhD
Teacher/Associate (exercises)		Ivana Knežević, PhD
Teacher/Associate (additional forms of work)
ECTS	7	Course status (obligatory/elective)	Obligatory elective
Attendance prerequisites	Enrolled in the first year of basic academic studies. Must already have some knowledge of English at a level necessary for acquisition of an academic competence in English as foreseen by teaching objectives (at the A2 level of the Common European Framework of Reference for Languages - CEFR).
Course objectives	Acquisition of a working knowledge of the English language to a level sufficient to engage in the demands of the program, especially with reference to the needs of students for studying in the theological-catechetical track of the Faculty. Familiarization with and mastery of necessary vocabulary for studying theology. Training in making active and proper use of basic theological and church-related terms, especially in the contexts of catechism and missionary work, but also for use in everyday life. Familiarization with local and cultural norms of the English speaking world along with usages of the English language which are specific to Holy Scripture, the Psalms, and in the divine services. Familiarization with the basics of British and American cultures with the purpose of putting the language in its proper cultural context. Development of capabilities to overcome the student's inadequacies in speech and social experience as it pertains to authentic environments in which English is spoken, as well as overcoming lexical and grammatical limitations which students may have. Enabling students to diligently read spiritual and theological texts in English, as well as producing acceptable written English in the same contexts.
Learning outcomes	Mastery of the English language up to B1 Level of the Common European Framework of Reference for Languages in understanding and analyzing theological and Orthodox spiritual texts which are relevant for the studies of students in the theological-pastoral program, as well as in the sphere of spoken communication.
