Course objectives		Enabling students to deal with the texts of the five books of John's writings in a methodologically more expert and applicatively more effective way: the Gospel, the Epistles, and the Revelation.
Learning outcomes		Illuminating John's writings by utilizing the classics of patristic and relevant contemporary exegesis; forming theological conceptual sets based on the contents of John's writings and enabling candidates to execute a contemporary actualization of their messages.
Course content
Lectures		1. Theological presuppositions and methodological characteristics of the patristic, historical-critical and literary exegesis of John's writings; 2. Exemplary exegetical analysis of John's Gospel; 3. Exemplary exegetical analysis of the Epistles; 4. Exemplary exegetical analysis of John's Revelation; 5. Formation of conceptual sets in John's writings; 6. Amplitude of the actualization of John's writings.
Practical classes (exercises, additional forms of classes, research work)		Processing the same thematic areas in the applicative manner while insisting on an independent analysis of selected texts and on practical training for the productive use of literature - by introducing exegetical issues and problems utilizing opinions of relevant authors within the framework of exercises or independent production of seminar papers.
